Bart C. Sullivan comes to Fox Galvin with more than sixteen years of litigation experience. His work is concentrated in the defense of complex cases in the areas of products liability, insurance, maritime, commercial and business. He has successfully defended matters in eight states, working most frequently in Missouri and Illinois.

Bart has tried numerous cases to verdict and has been involved in a number of very large matters, high-profile trials, and "hot" litigation areas. For example, he has successfully represented:

- multiple defendants in environmental litigation and claims.
- towing companies in Jones Act litigation and commercial maritime claims
- insurers and reinsurers in coverage disputes
- class-action defendants in automotive, medical products, and environmental cases
- international defendants in all-terrain vehicle litigation
- sellers of asbestos in hundreds of suits

He has defended numerous cases involving alleged wrongful death and catastrophic injuries, and has represented business clients on matters ranging from employment-related claims to multimillion dollar transactions. Bart also has significant administrative and appellate experience, and has argued in state and federal appeals courts throughout the midwest.

Additionally, Bart has frequently served as a speaker on topics relating to environmental law, admiralty, and health law, and has published articles in the areas of:

- reinsurance
- maritime law
- health law economics

He is licensed in Missouri and Illinois, and admitted before the United States Courts of Appeals for the Sixth and Eighth Circuits. He is also admitted to practice in various federal district courts in Missouri and Illinois. Bart has served as Chair of the Planning and Zoning Commission of Town and Country, Missouri; on the Dean's Council of the Saint Louis University School of Law; and in other civic positions and efforts. He is an avid fan of St. Louis Rams football and University of Kentucky basketball, and is a competitive judo player and instructor.
