John Allen has successfully represented his clients in a wide variety of matters ranging from employment discrimination cases to class action claims to the remediation of contaminated properties. Although his career is still young, John has achieved numerous favorable results, including:

- obtaining summary judgment in a retaliation claim filed against his client in federal court;
- obtaining summary judgment in a national origin discrimination case filed in federal court;
- obtaining dismissal of his client in several consumer protection cases;
- negotiating favorable settlements after extensive discovery and motion practice in various employment discrimination lawsuits and other commercial cases;
- working with a team of lawyers to defeat class certification in a case filed against his client under Title III of the Americans with Disabilities Act; and
- playing an active role in the remediation of several properties contaminated by PCE, coordinating with various consultants and other attorneys throughout the country.

Currently, John concentrates his practice on the defense of various class action, product liability, environmental and maritime claims.
